Early Summer Wedding:

Carole Lazzareschi Troth Told

Plans are being made for an early summer wedding by Carole Lazzareschi of Atherton and David Perry Diestel of Fair Oaks, near Sacramento, whose engagement was revealed at a cocktail party at the Conrad Lazzareschi home last Saturday evening.

Some 100 guests bid to the party first read the news on the large mirror just inside the door . . . the words "Carole and Dave" were inscribed on red and white flower hearts attached to the mirror.

WHITE BROCADE

Carole chose for her engagement party a white brocade cocktail sheath and carried a nosegay of red and white carnations with garnet rosebuds. Mrs. Lazzareschi donned a black silk cocktail dress, accented with a tiny orchid figure, and a lei of plumeria. Mrs. Joseph J. Diestel of Fair Oaks, mother of the future bridegroom, chose a beige colored silk cocktail dress with white butterfly orchids.

Accompanying Mrs. Diestel here for the announcement party was Dave's father, Judge Diestel.

In addition to the decorative romantic tidings on the mirror, the mantel was banked with arrangements of large yellow and rust toned chrysanthemums.

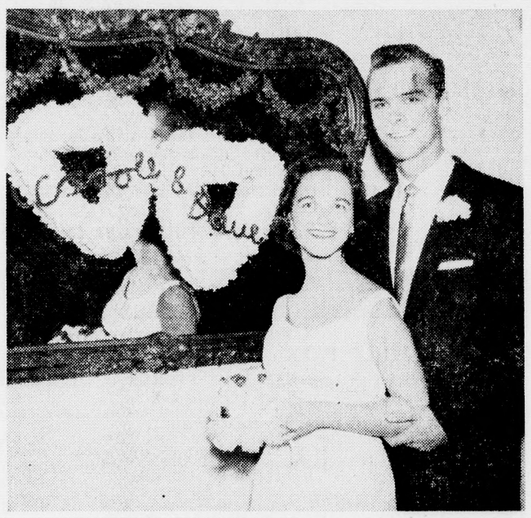

The engagement climaxes four years of friendship for the couple. They first met when they were high school seniors and the drama clubs of Menlo School and Castilleja worked together on a production.

In addition to attending Castilleja, Carole was graduated from Stanford University. She has one brother, Raymond E. Messini of Menlo Park and Capitola. She is the great granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Squire Quimby, who settled in the Sacramento Valley in 1843.

Carole is also a direct descendant of Andrew Mann of Pennsylvania, a captain in the Army during the revolutionary war. Her paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Achilles Lazzareschi of Lucca, Italy.

Dave will receive his BS from Menlo Business College next June. He has a sister, Mrs. Norman Lauppe of Sacramento, and a brother, J. John Diestel Jr., who is working for his Ph.D in international relations at Stanford.

The future bridegroom is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Perry Anderson, early California ranchers, who settled in Rio Vista, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Emile Diestel of Phebus, Va.

American Field Service Is Organized

Mrs. Ralph Hofer was named chairman of the Menlo-Atherton group of the American Field Service to head the program in the area at the organizational meeting held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kennedy.

Mrs. Raymond Peters will assist Mrs. Hoffer. This marks the first year Menlo-Atherton has had a foreign student under the program and with community support and interest, it is planned to send a student or students from the junior class at Menlo-Atherton to Europe next summer.

Representatives from the Sequoia faculty wives attending the meeting were Mrs. John Dusel and Mrs. Frances Hutchinson.

Later in the year, the group plans to stage a fashion show to benefit the American Field Service foreign student scholarship

Mrs. Jackson Flanders was appointed liaison representative for the Menlo-Atherton PTA. At a PTA board meeting held following the American Field Service meeting, it was decided to give financial support to the program and the amount will depend on results of the PTA membership drive and the Christmas tree sale to be held this year.

The M-A junior class was represented by Roger Whitmire, class president, who pledged the support of his class to the project. Also attending the meeting were two representatives from the Menlo-Athetron Junior Red Cross, Liz Kennedy and Joan Starkweather.

Sew? Knit? Red Cross Needs Volunteers to Fill Quotas

Sewing . . . knitting . . . making men's and women's bed jackets, slippers, layettes, and knitted sweaters . . . all for the Red Cross.

It's reminiscent of the time everyone was busy doing these projects during World War II . . . and a lot of people are still doing it.

The Southern San Mateo County Chapter of Red Cross needs a lot more people to sew and knit in order to meet its quotas.

Mrs. Harland Duncan of Redwood City, production chairman for the chapter, reports that a group meets regularly the first and third Wednesday of each month to sew at the chapter house, 3540 Middlefield road, Menlo Park.

Anyone who wants to sew but who would prefer doing it at home may take out garments, already cut out and ready to be stitched together.

Afghan squares, six inches square, are accepted by the chapter. Mrs. Duncan recommends this as an excellent way to use up left over yarn from other knitting and crocheting. The squares are then put together to make afghans measuring 42x54 inches for wheelchair robes at veterans' and military hospitals.

Mrs. Duncan also asks for donations of washable material for cushion covers, which will measure 18x36 inches.

Among the many active in the sewing group which meets at the chapter house is Mrs. A. J. Krutmeyer of Menlo Park.

A group of other Menlo Park women, under the leadership of Mrs. Albert Ittner, has been meeting at various homes to sew for the Red Cross since 1940. At least half of this group has been active for the entire 16 years.

Present members of the sewing club, which has no name, are Mrs. A. C. Anderson, Mrs. Floyd Beach, Mrs. Fred Pfaff, Mrs. Iva Gill, Mrs. Sarah Farmer and Mrs. Louise Cutler.

Home knitters of sweaters and afghans include Mrs. A. D. Norris of Atherton, Mrs. Harry De Young and Mrs. Henry Gautschi, both of Menlo Park, and others from Palo Alto, Redwood City and San Francisco.

At Art Guild:

A luncheon before the Stanford-Oregon State football game this Saturday will be given at the Allied Arts Guild between 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and will be open to the public.

Those wishing to attend the pre-game event are asked to call the Guild, DA 4-2588, for reservations.

Buffet luncheons are being planned for each Saturday from now until the end of the year. On days when games are not played here, the luncheons will begin at 12 noon.

AAUW Rummage Sale to Benefit Fellowship

A rummage sale which opens today will not only be a benefit to the "shoppers," but will also benefit the national and local fellowship program of the American Association of University Women.

The sale is being sponsored by the Menlo - Atherton Branch AAUW and is being held at Holy Trinity Hall, Laurel and Ravenswood avenue, from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. today and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. tomorrow.

According to Mrs. John J. Driscoll, branch president, two recipients of international grants are presently studying at Stanford this year.

They are Miss Hisako Nakayama, a member of the Transportation Technical Research Insitute in Tokyo, who is working at Stanford Research Institute on experimental studies of molecular physics, and Miss Natividad Macaranas, who is at Stanford University working toward a PhD degree in education and who will return to her native Philippines to help promote a training program for teachers.

In all, there are 30 women scholars from 20 countries who are studying in the United States this year on international grants. Forty national fellowship awards have also been made this year to both American and foreign women who are doing outstanding work on the graduate level.

In addition to supporting the fellowship program ,the local branch will give a scholarship to a girl graduating from Menlo-Atherton High School this year.

MISS NAKAYAMA

Born in Hokkaido and raised in Tokyo, Miss Nakayama, who resides in Menlo Park, received a teacher's certificate in home economics and health education at the Girls High School attached to Japan's Women's University. She received certificates in physics and mathematics at Hokkaido (Imperial) University, the only department of physics open to women at that time.

At the Institute of Low Temperature Science at Hokkaido, Miss Nakayama continued her experimental research on the segregation of water and has been engaged in research for more than 10 years.

Although her work includes many overtime hours, the young researcher finds time to enjoy cooking, knitting, sewing and other handworks. She is especially interested in music and photography and enjoys listening to classical music.

At SRI this year, she is continuing experimental studies on molecular physics with special reference to the absorption of water molecules on soil particles. Her present project deals with frost formation. Her most recent assignment was prevention through frost knowledge of damage to railway, highway and farm land.

Working toward a PhD degree in education at Stanford University, Miss Macaranas received her BS from the National Teachers College and her MA from the University of the Philippines. Home Economics was her major and English her minor. After graduation, she taught in a private high school and a public high school.

After receiving her MA, Miss Macaranas continued graduate study working for her PhD. Since her interest now lies in teacher preparation, she plans to take courses which will enable her to help promote the organization of a richer training program for teachers.

The young woman plans to return to her native country where she will aid the project of recruiting and preparing qualified teachers.

Miss Macaranas is an active member of the Philippine Association of University Women. She belongs to the University of the Philippines Psychological Society, the Philippine Mental Health Association and the Philippine Home Economics Association. She is also adviser to the University of Manila Educators Club and the Third Year Students Association.

TWO YOUNG WOMEN now in this area who have benefited from the fellowship program of the Menlo Park Branch, American Association of University Women, are looking at a map of their native countries to which they will return to continue work in their chosen field. A rummage sale is being held today and tomorrow to raise additional funds for AAUW's program. Pictured above are (from left) Mrs. Rudolf H. Severin, chairman of the fellowship study committee, Natividad M. Macaranas of the Philippines, Hisako Nakayama of Japan, and Mrs. Richard D. Bremer, a member of the state fellowship committee.

Fashion Carousel:

Designers Fashion Coats For Exciting Days Ahead

By EVELYN RADCLIFFE

The days are turning colder. The temperature is dropping. People are thinking about buying warm new coats and the STORES are beginning to show COTTONS! Such is the anomaly of fashion. Much as we feel the pull toward these exciting new "cruise clothes" we'll steel ourselves and talk about winter coats instead.

The general line in coats is either full and large, or perfectly straight. Very few designers show even one fitted coat. Hem-lines in coats are almost as flexible as you want to make them. Not too many shorties (as we knew them last year) are available, but the "yard long" coat (meaning just that, an even 36 inches from shoulder to hem), and the seven - eighths length are both good, and for evening, some of the wool coats are floor length, to be worn in their unadorned simplicity over ball gowns.

The "car coat" gets our stamp of "most likely to succeed" this season because it is so practical and is made to double as a raincoat. One of the cutest we've seen is a White Stag finger-tip length water-repellent poplin coat, meticulously tailored and lined in a lush, furry fabric which continues out over the huge collar. This is inexpensive, as it should be because this trend may not last more than a year or two.

For your more lady-like moments a dress length coat of cashmere, vicuna, or soft wool, with some back interest (a mere hint of a belt, for example, or high button detail) would take you through a whole day's activities and even serve you well after 6.

Have you seen the coats made of Borgana? It's a new blend of Orlon and Dynel that looks more like fur than fabric, is cuddly warm, very light weight, beautiful, and can't be hurt by rain or snow. That's what their ads say, and we're protected by law from fake claims in advertising. Sounds wonderful.

Another exciting vision on the coat scene this year is the return to the fur trimmed coat. Remember the big wooly coats with the huge fox or lynx collars? That spinning old wheel of fashion has brought them around again in all their glory. The fur trimmed coats were never more beautiful than this year, however.

The most luxurious ones are completely fur lined, such as the sherry brown wool number with the blond nutria lining . . . simply exquisite, but much too warm for our mild Peninsula weather.

Fashion authorities are recommending these soft wool street length coats to cover any situation from a sweater and skirt occasion up to (but not including) a full-dress evening.

And speaking of sweaters and skirts reminds us of cashmeres. Do you know why cashmere sweaters are so expensive? For one thing the wool is picked by hand, right off the back of its producer, the Himalayan mountain goat. Another reason is that methods of transportation in that area haven't progressed since Marco Polo brought his treasures from the East, and the fleece must be transported by camel caravan. It sometimes takes a year for the fleecy raw wool which the goatherds have collected to make its way inland.

While we're on the subject of sweaters, did you know that the word "cardigan" originated in the Crimean war a hundred years ago? British Lord Cardigan issued his soldiers a woolen garment to wear under their uniforms which they dubbed a "cardigan." When women began to adapt it to their own uses it finally evolved into a caridgan sweater, and there is harly a feminine wardrobe without one today!

A BASIC TRAINING course for senior leaders of the Sequoia Girl Scouts will be held this morning at the Scout House in Redwood City. It will be a conference on troop government, finance, policies and discipline. The course will be given between 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Couple Are Feted at Post Reception Event

A garden wedding reception was given for Mr. and Mrs. Jack Livezey (Connie Marie Stelmach) recently at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Stelmach, to honor the young couple who were married last June.

The Stelmach home was decorated with white flowers, candles and bells and also orchids flown here from Hawaii by Connie's father who flies to Honolulu with an airlines.

For the event, Connie chose a bottle blue silk organza and her mother wore a champagne blue silk organza. Connie's sister, Carol Jean, who also assisted in receiving, chose a cordial red frock.

The couple were showered with many gifts from relatives and friends and also received telegrams during the evening. A buffet dinner was served and guests toasted the couple with champagne.

The patio and garden were decorated with Hawaiian torches and the rock garden and water falls were decorated with vanda orchids.

Shopping in Menlo

with MERRIE PARKER

With each approaching holiday season, almost all of us buy for our wardrobe something in the green and red colors . . . and not to be left out this year, are the younguns'. They can carry Christmas colors with them in their play when they wear the cute red and green plaid slacks and jackets of waterproof cotton . . . you'll find them at Mary's Stork to Teen Shop. The slacks, with semi-elastic bands, are $3.98 . . . and the jackets, which "zip" up the front and have a pocket at each side, are $5.98. Another jacket is the button-down-the-front type and priced at $9.95. Both jackets are snuggly lined with red flannel for warmth when they go out-of-doors.

* * *

For the high school set, the college gals or the young matrons are the feminine sleep wear we saw this week at Ralston's. Made of soft challis, the sleep wear is available in a lovely shade of blue or in soft pink. Trim includes a nylon net yoke . . . lace around the small collar and sleeves . . . and a matching color satin ribbon tie at the neck front. The short gown, the long gown and the pajama set are $6.95 each . . . the bedjacket, $4.95. A wonderfully feminine gift for Christmas . . . and wonderful for sleep, too. Needs little or no ironing, which makes it twice as nice.

* * *

The scent of a lovely fragrance always adds a festive note especially during the yule season . . . what fun it is to open a package on Christmas Eve or morning to find perfume or cologne to add to your own personal gaiety at the family dinner and open houses. Clifford's Pharmacy has a wonderful French import by Carven, who, by the way, originated the cologne atomitist. Carven is available in two wonderful fragrances . . . ma griffe and robe d'un soir. The cologne price starts at $5 . . . the purse size perfume at $4. You'll like to wear these fragrances.

The turkey, ready to be carved, waiting on the table . . . the candles making a soft glow over the china and silver . . . both spell excitement for the holiday family gathering. But, important, too, is the tablecloth and a very festive one we saw at Steven's fits the occasion so well. It's especially designed for the holidays . . . in Christmas red, it has simplicity with its gold design of pine cones, futuristic Christmas trees, bells and lacy snow flakes. What fun to eat dinner with your plate upon this cloth! It's of Redi-Set fabric which means it has been treated so that spilled foods will wipe right off. Available in the 52-inch square for $3.98 . . . or in the 65x108 inches for $10.95 . . . and matching napkins are 59 cents each. When you're in Steven's, you might ask to see the plastic Christmas cloths, too, in red or green patterns, which are wonderful for children's parties or for their very own dinner table. They'll like the designs of angels, reindeer and ornaments . . . priced at $1.79 and $2.98 . . . with matching rayon fabric napkins.

* * *

There's nothing new in the rainy season . . . but there's something new in the way of door mats we saw at Menlo Park Hardware which are not only useful but very decorative. Made in India, the mats are of fine grain coco fiber and come in a wide variety of Indian patterns . . . with the natural background, the Near East Indian designs are in maroon, a rich orange, red, brown or green. There are two sizes, 18x32 inches for $5.95 . . . and the 16x28 inches for $4.75. You'll really be extending the welcome with one of these unusual mats . . . and they'll add to your festive interior decor, too. The plain door mats are also available at Menlo Park Hardware and come in several sizes and prices, from $2.15 to $7.50, depending on the size you need.

What's Doing Among Menlo Park Teen-Agers

Sue Legallet DA 6-0295

This column should be easy to write this week because the events can be easily put into two categories, with some left overs. And we are also getting back into the swing of things, because this week we again have the slumber parties to boot. And here we go.

D.P.I.'s

The above is the first category because so many people went to that dance; in fact, so many people that we are not going to mention them in here at all. Instead, we'll just tell you about the parties that sprung off because of them.

Before the affair, Hank Hersomia had just a party, if that's what you would want to call it. Eating, talking, and dancing too, were Jerry Bogue, Tom Hodgson, Brent Lambert, Ralph Borgenson, Laddie Gock, Jerry Fitzgerald, Ralph Dorst, Bill Bishop, Ed Maloney, Lee Spencer, Bill Menta, Jim McGinnis, Nickie Jenks, Ed Thomas, Barbara Du Fresne, Sue Castner, Sue Barron, Kenny Wil-Penny Duerr, Sue Chase, Don Powell, Dick Tjaden, Hal Turner, Nick Castner, Dickie Oppenheimer, Larry Ludgus and others.

Having a delicious dinner at Anne Stapleton's before the dance were Kenny Ackerman, Arlon Rasmussen, yours truly, Barc Corbus, Sheri Adams, Dave Skuce, Arline Cottrell, Barbara Dickman, Jimmy Sherman, Bill Bull, Louise Stapleton, Bob Buckthal and Liz Yarborough.

We still have one more happening that fits into this first category. After the D.P.I.'s six kids went down to a pizza parlor, only to find it closing. The would-be pizza eaters were Bobbie Link, Dick Tjaden, Betsy Kimball, Tom Hensill, Sue Hall and Ed Taney.

HALLOWE'EN

Perhaps this should have come first, but the D.P.I.'s were closer in time to the writing of this column, and at times, it's hard for the writer to return that far back. And, now, down to business.

First, how about some slumber parties? Jeanne Cole gave one that fated night, and, because of the fooling around, trick or treating (yes, even teen-agers enjoy such sport) the guests, Dottie Groves, Rosemarie Montalva, Kathy Crawford, Carol Crawford, Pat Whaely, Nancy Camp, Carolyn Shannon, Sue Rochford, Julie Borrmann, Loretta Gananian and Dee Stone (who helped give it), didn't get to sleep before 4 a.m. And a school night too!

And now another one. Barb Maider, Carol Leehy Lynn Skaff, Jane Benidt, Barb Buckholtz, Linda Allio, Ester Klebe and Judy Rowson, along with the hostess, Patti Brown, did an awful lot of cruising around before they returned to Patti's for some sleep, of which they did not get much. But they all had a good time and that's what counts.

Some of the fellows who stopped by Sue Grider's party for a while were Chris Clark, Bob Anderson, Keith Vaughn, Bud Corson, Dave Peasley, Ken Kveseth, Frank McCann, Chet West, Larry Miller, Larry Worcester, Ray Blouin, Jim Kjerard, Greg Fox, Barry Davidson, Dave Edrington, Bob Choplin, Chuck Bush, Doug Lennon, Bob Hatch and Dave Judge.

The girls making Sue's party a sleepless one were Sally Christiansen, Marilyn Menta, Gaither Hatcher, Linda Lyons, Fran Dickman, Libby Bell and Sherri Snow.

And still others dropping in on this party: Sue Clancy, Dianna Hedge, Jennifer Parin, Sue Castner, Cheryle Barnes, Barb Maider, Pat Brown, Gerry Hattom, Sue Silva and others.

We still haven't finished with Hallowe'en parties. Marylin Jones invited all these kids over for dancing and general Hallowe'en fun: Kay Mullen, Leeland Chaney, Barbara Chitros, Jack Wolf, Mable Williams, Marshall Kelpatricks, Yvonne Simmons, Pete Chadwick, Althea Springs, Bill Gass, Kathy Borgia, Gary Walton, Bob Ontiveras, Ron Billington, Darlene Gabrelson and Paul Dallas.

Don't forget, also that night, there was the dance over at Burgess, of which many of the kids dropped in on. There were so many that it would be as impossible to list them as it would be to tell you who everyone was at the D.P.I.'s.

Before we close the category of "All Spooks Night," here's another party. Marlene Rudolph had a few girls over to enjoy a good goof-off time, and what else is that night good for? Lois Cinquini, Pat Dudley, Jenny Bartells and Mary Ann Flores were the goof-offs.

OTHER HAPPENINGS

Like we promised, there would be some parties that would fall into this section. Off hand, we'll mention the doings of the Spanish Club of M-A. One day last week they went to the City to see Carmen Amaya and Troup, who are flamingo dancers. They also ate dinner out and returned home rather late for a school night. Members of the club are Marlene Rudolph, Joye King, Phyllis Skalko, Louis Cinquini, Karma Gropp, Eric Stendell, Bill Pitts, Connie Kent, Roger Horn, Ted Silen, Jere Phipers, Joanne Lusch and Mary Coolege.

The Junior Statesmen had their convention in Sacramento this weekend, with many kids from M-A attending.

We have to be caught up on all the news around here. Last week we missed saying that Mary Kispert, Liz Ramp, Marilyn MacKenzie and Fran Willard went up to the City to see Penny Walker off to Australia. Penny's going to be on board ship for 18 days. Gads!

Ah, for that surprise party. Given by Terry Rudolph, and planned to surprise Frances Miller, which it did, and very cleverly at that. After returning to her house to change her clothes, Frances found — or should we say heard — a bunch of girls yelling surprise at her. Yellers, Marcia Mirsky, Judy Kemlar, Nancy Bush, Lynn Livingstone, Janna Osmond, Judy Gibbs, Macy Ennis, Kathy McKenna, Susan Betts and Margaret Matthews. The girls gave Frances records, along with some other gifts, and then sat around watching TV too.

Trying to keep track of all these little notes, the next one to come up is that Dave Newhouse, Gary Dodson and Doug Leehy are up at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Taking a trip down to Los Angeles for the weekend were Sue Estberg and Jill Kudlich. Karen Lindsay went up to Brigham Young University, and had a real great time. It was homecoming weekend.

Saturday night found some boys over at Bill Menta's for a little game of cards. Greg Fox, Dave Meese, Charley Dahl, Stan Dereliian, Dave Skuce and Dick Tjaden.

Later on in the evening, Bill's sister, Marilyn, returned from the show with a bunch of friends, Sue Castner, Gaither Hatcher, Sue Grider, Sharon Snow, Sally Christiansen and Cammy Cole. The two parties mixed together. Then the boys left, but the girls stayed around for the slumberless slumber party. At least this time it was not on a school night.

Well, guess that's it.

Joke . . . Moron: That which if women would put on they wouldn't have so many colds in the winter.

Hindu Dances Will Highlight Unitarian Bazaar Saturday

Entertainment of authentic Hindu dances will highlight the annual bazaar planned by the Women's Alliance of the Palo Alto Unitarian Church on Saturday, November 10, between 11 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

The bazaar, which will have a "World Fellowship" theme, will be held at the Palo Alto Women's Clubhouse, Homer and Cowper streets. The Hindu dances will be given at 3 p.m. by Christa Heck and Larry Hunt. Their appearance is under the auspices of the Dance Theater Guild of San Mateo with choreography by Gordon Showalter, director and choreographer of the Guild and also director of the Showalter Academy of Dance in San Mateo.

There will be no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

A special treat for the children will be folk songs by Bash Kennett, known to many as the "Looking Glass Lady" of television fame. This will be given at 2 p.m. at the Children's Booth.

Imported toys from the Scandinavian countries will be sold by the Children's Booth. There will be other toys, gift and handwork items, Christmas decorations and wrappings, aprons of all kinds, and African violets and other varieties of house plants.

The "Attic Treasures" booth will offer jewelry, bric-a-brac, used books and miscellaneous items. In addition to homemade foods, candies and baked goods, bazaar-goers will be able to buy favorite recipes of members.

A buffet luncheon will be served from noon until 3 p.m.

Co-chairmen for the bazaar are Mrs. L. W. Bitney Sr. and Mrs. Solomon Schmidt, both of Los Altos. Assisting the chairmen are Mrs. Nils Hoel, Mrs. Robert Walton, both of Menlo Park; Mrs. Donald Cleaveland, Los Altos; Mrs. John G. DeNike, Mrs. Charles Conley, both of Palo Alto; Mrs. David Karpilow of San Carlos; Mrs. Adelaide B. Sedgley, Redwood City.

Mrs. John O. Erkman of Palo Alto is the Alliance president.

Handwork Will Be Featured at Nativity Sale

Beautiful and unusual handwork will be featured at the Church of the Nativity Guild's annual Christmas Bazaar calendared for Saturday and Sunday, December 1 and 2, at the Parish Hall.

Mrs. Andrew Fiolek, chairman of the knitting department, has been working with 20 other Guild members to complete a large assortment of knit articles including slippers, argyles, infant sacs, booties, caps, children's sweaters and afghans.

Mrs. Raymond Maynard and her sewing committee will have handmade aprons, both decorative and useful, sachets, scent hangers, collars for teen-age wearers, pinafores, bun servers, pillow slips, and many other items.

The sale on Saturday will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sunday, 7 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Proceeds will benfit the new Nativity School.

High School Bonds Fall Far Short of Building Costs

MP Elementary District Plans $396,000 Issue

Jan. 22 Vote Slated on Move To Finance Intermediate Plant

Menlo Park Elementary School District trustees this week informally directed administrators to prepare resolutions and other legal papers, so they can set a $396,000 bond issue election for Jan. 22 of next year.

Appropriate documents will be prepared by the trustees' formal meeting next Tuesday, administrators declared.

School District Business Manager John Richert reported an engineering survey has indicated that improvements on the Silas Palmer estate facing Watkins avenue must be taken if the district is to obtain a 15-acre site for a proposed seventh and eighth grade school. The bond issue monies, added to reserves already in hand, will be used to finance purchase of the land and construction of the new intermediate plant.

No appraisal of the Palmer property has yet been made but one should be available by next week's meeting, Richert reported.

He added that the property owner has been "most cooperative" in allowing engineers and surveyors access to the property, but has indicated that he will fight any condemnation proceedings. The Palmer home is 78 years old, according to Richert.

The business manager said that the surveys made thus far have indicated that the property includes eight acres of unimproved land adjacent to the Southern Pacific railroad tracks, but that the district could obtain as much as 11 acres without disturbing existing improvements.

MINIMUM

The district's trustees indicated at their formal meeting last month that they felt a 15-acre site was the minimum allowable for a basic seventh and eighth grade school.

The entire property includes 21 acres, Richert said, and the appraisals to be submitted next week will also include cost of the property as a whole, plus its several parts.

District Superintendent Dr. Melville Homfeld said that whether or not the district would seek a 15-acre site, or settle for a smaller one, involved "basic decisions."

These included a re-evaluation of the minimum distance from classrooms to the railroad tracks, and whether or not the district had hopes of building an administrative unit and corporation yard on the land.

Returning to the financial problem, Richert pointed out that the district now has a balance of $284,000 in unsold bonds, and by the time the Jan. 22 election date arrives, will have an additional capacity of $396,000 which can be asked for.

This will mean, he said, that the district will have a total of $680,000 with which to purchase the land and start construction of the proposed intermediate school.

This is not enough to buy the complete plant, he conceded, but added that more bonding capacity will be available, for another bond issue, by the time this is used up.

The administrators said they could prepare the resolutions setting the time of and amount of the election by next week's meeting. They will also submit a list of names of election officials at that time.

Underpass Gets Top City Priority Nod

An underpass from the Linfield Oaks area through to El Camino Real heads a priority list of capital improvements submitted to the Menlo Park City Council from the Planning Commission Monday night.

The planners put the underpass at the top of the list following a study session with the Recreation and Traffic Safety Commissions earlier.

Exact location of the proposed underpass has not been determined until a preliminary study by City Engineer Edwin Smith is complete. Previously, however, the Planners had called for an underpass or a crossing at Middle avenue and El Camino Real.

Next on the planner's priority list is the widening of Middlefield road.

Full development of recreational facilities at Belle Haven Park, including a multi-purpose room, swimming pool and baseball diamonds, and establishment of a community center building in the Menlo Park Civic Center.

A police station building in civic center was the last item on the priority list submitted for the council's consideration.

Date Set:

BIKE SALE

Menlo Park police department's annual auction of bicycles, hubcaps, and other abandoned or "recovered stolen" items has been tentatively set for Dec. 19, Police Chief George Potter said this week.

The pickings will be slimmer this year than they have been in the past, he noted.

There are only 11 bicycles to be sold. There are some hubcaps. But there are no kiddie cars, wagons or similar minor items which police have picked up.

Chief Potter noted that all of the items placed on sale will have been in the hands of police for more than a year, at the time of the auction.

Where possible, owners are notified that their property has been taken in.

Service Clubs Start Drive For Tree Sale

Sale of "down payment" tickets for Christmas trees to be distributed in the Menlo Park Kiwanis club-Menlo Park-Palo Alto Optimist club's annual joint sale will begin this week.

The ducats have already been distributed to service club members, Co-chairmen Bennie Rollefstad of the Optimists and Addison Janes of the Kiwanis said this week.

Some 4000 tickets have also been sent to Menlo-Atherton high school, where students will sell them in a neffort to raise money for the American Field Service fund. Sale by the students begins next week.

As in past years, the tickets will be sold for a nominal fee and the price will be subtracted from the regular retail price of a Christmas tree, when the purchaser calls at the service clubs' lot which will be set up at 640 Santa Cruz avenue.

The proceeds of the sale are used by the service clubs to finance their youth activities budgets and the high school students have been invited to join in selling the tickets for greater area coverage and to aid in financing student body projects. Proceeds of last year's sale by students went to the bleacher fund for the high school gym.

This year, Rollefstad and Janes said, the trees are to be delivered to the lot facing Santa Cruz avenue on Dec. 1; the actual sale will start on Dec. 3 after preliminary arrangements are complete.

Among other projects to be financed through this year's sale by students will be the sponsorship of a trip to Europe next summer of a Menlo-Atherton junior student, as an exchange visitor under the American Field Service Fund program.

The high school's PTA is overseeing this portion of the program.

Currently attending M-A as an exchange student is Palla Savahlati of Finland.

Hit-Run Charge Follows Mishap

Leo Lewis, 49, of 1359 Madera avenue, was charged with hit and run driving after leaving the scene of an accident on Middlefield road last Friday morning.

They said he was the driver of the car which was forced from the northbound lane on Middlefield road by traffic ahead which sideswiped a southbound car operated by Janice R. Heinzmann, 23, of East Palo Alto.

A witness "tailed" Lewis' car for more than a mile, and called attention of officers to the fact that the car ahead of him had been in a crash.

Police stopped Lewis on Ravenswood avenue near Alma street.

Nobody was injured.

Crusade Drive Still Lags

Residential area solicitation in Menlo Park's United Crusade effort was still lagging badly last week, with only 23 per cent of the division's $19,763 quota collected to date. And area-wide, few divisions had achieved their quotas in the annual fund drive.

Meanwhile, countywide, only $341,272 or 64.1 per cent of the county's $532,148 goal had been reported collected, at a report meeting last Thursday night. The drive, which was to have taken only the month of October, has been extended.

Several area companies were honored, however, for their all-out efforts in behalf of the Crusade. Among them were Hiller Helicopters of East Palo Alto, whose drive played a part in putting that area well "over the top" in collections and Consolidated Freightways, Inc., which has been instrumental in raising the Commerce and Industry division collections in Menlo Park to $10,329, or 85.5 per cent of that division's quota.

Actually, a total of $16,650—74.4 per cent of the city's total quota—has been collected in all divisions. The city's total quota is $35,122.

Other south county communities with the exception of East Palo Alto, have had trouble nearing their quotas, too.

In Atherton, 26,651 or 77.5 per cent of the city's $34,407 quota has been collected and audited; in Woodside, $9944 of a $13,220 assignment—75.2 per cent—has been collected.

City's Library Building Bid Opening Is Near

Bids for construction of Menlo Park's municipal library, to be built in civic center, will be opened early next Tuesday night before the Menlo Park city council. Eight p.m., at the city council chambers in civic center, is time and place for the bid opening.

Architect Kingsford Jones, designer of the building, has stated that the building project has been greeted with much interest by area contractors, and that a larger-than-usual number of sets of plans has been distributed.

Also, he said, if a contract is awarded by the council next week, construction of the long-pending building may start about Dec. 1.

Woman Posts $525 Bail After Arrest

Lena May Froushour, 58 - year-old apartment house manager who resides at 1349 Willow road, was to appear in South San Mateo county Municipal court on charges of drunken driving Nov. 13, after posting $525 bail following her arrest here Sunday

Mrs. Froushour, police said, was arrested after being observed driving west on Willow road, at the Bayshore freeway overpass. She was driving in an erratic manner, they said, adding that she failed to pass a sobriety test on being taken to the county jail.

Woodside Votes to Be a City

Woodside will become this county's 15th city.

Absentee voters confirmed an earlier vote for incorporation by casting 55 votes for incorporation, 15 against. One absentee voter did not vote on the incorporation issue.

A count of the absentee ballots Wednesday gave the incorporation proposal a 646 vote compared to 574 against. Needed to carry the election were 589 votes.

Woodside will become a city following certification by the California Secretary of State, an action which usually takes about 10 days.

Establishment of a city government in the community climaxes months of battle between groups favoring incorporation and those opposing it.

All, however, agreed on one thing—they wanted to keep a rural atmosphere for the community.

Boundaries for the new city roughly follow Woodside Valley, bounded by the crest of the hills to the east of the valley, Portola on the south, Toyon Hills on the north and extending up the hills to the West.

Program Lacks Million

Rises in building costs have added neary $1,000,000 to the estimated cost of schools that the Sequoia High School District hoped to build with money from a $3,975,000 bond issue passed by the voters only 17 months ago.

This was the substance of a report made last night by Dr. Rex Turner, superintendent, to the high school district's board of trustees.

He pointed out:

1. On the basis of a 23 percent rise in building costs estimated by architects, cost of the proposed Woodside road-Alameda de las Pulgas school is estimated to have risen from $1,732,500 to $2,187,645, in spite of a cut in the number of classrooms planned;

2. Cost of a proposed high school for East Palo Alto, for which land already has been purchased, has gone up from $1,632,500 to $2,075,645;

3. An addition of five classrooms and two shop rooms at Carlmont is expected to cost a total of $235,338; originally, they were expected to cost $187,500;

4. Shops at Menlo - Atherton High School which were expected to cost $47,500, actually cost a total of $81,516 when equipped.

NEAR MILLION SHORT

As a result, Turner said, the district wil lbe $975,568 short, according to present estimates, of the money needed to fulfill commitments made when last year's bond issue was passed.

Drawings for the Woodside road-Alameda de las Pulgas plant already have been trimmed so that the original 41 classrooms planned have been reduced to 37.

The plans for this school are currently being studied by officers of the state division of school architecture, and when approved and returned, will be the subject of bids.

Peter Kump of Menlo Park is architect for the school.

The proposed East Palo Alto high school still is in the drawing stage. Architects Janssen, Dasking and Keller are designing this school.

The situation is complicated, he pointed out, by the fact that the schools are designed to open for an enrollment of about 1200 students, and are to be expanded as the need grows. Each ultimately is to have a capacity of 2000 students.

NEW SITE FOUND

Also promised when last year's bond issue was passed was that $250,000 of the total would be used for acquisition of a sixth school site. Dr. Turner said that this money still is being held in reserve for that purpose.

Trustees are studying where to put such a school—needs for it growing apparent in a variety of areas, from Portola Valley to Emerald Lake, as population grows throughout the area.

Though not depreciating the seriousness of the situation, Dr. Turner pointed out that there were a few bright spots:

1. Comparisons of costs "per student" of the proposed two new high schools for the Sequoia district are lower than they were for several other high schools on the Peninsula, in spite of the rise in building costs.

The proposed Woodside road school, for instance, will cost approximately $1810 per pupil originally; Capuchino, Carlmont, Hillsdale, Westmore and Serra high schools, all built several years ago, before the most recent upsurge in building costs, all cost more than that.

2. Acquisition of additional land at Carlmont high school recently was $4576 below the district's original estimate of $25,000.

The high school district's board of trustees was discussing possible finance measures, in order to make up the deficit, last night as the Recorder went to press.

Following 'Disagreements':

The Rev. Gardner Smith Resigns As Rector of Holy Trinity Church

The Rev. Gardner Smith, Holy Trinity Episcopal Church's rector since Ferbuary of 1954, resigned last Thursday because of differences of opinion between himself and members of the church vestry on matters of "parish administration and over-all considerations of spiritual leadership."

Disclosure of the resignation was made by Senior Warden W. Stanley Pearce of the church at last Sunday's services. Pearce added that the Rev. John Thomas, who has been Curate at the church since early this year, will continue to serve until a new rector is selected.

In a letter to parishioners announcing the resignation, Pearce stated,

"For the past year and a half there have been differences between the Rector and the vestry. These grew, for the most part, out of disagreements over matters of parish administration and over-all considerations of spiritual leadership.

"The issues were given the most careful study and discussion by your vestry over a considerable period of time.

"It was felt by all concerned that since such differences in a parish could seriously threaten its growth and development, concerted action was taken by the vestry most recently to seek a solution with the rector. Ensuing discussions made it clear the differences were, in fact, becoming more acute and out of his regard for the parish, Father Smith offered to withdraw.

"The vestry, without any divergence of opinion, likewise felt that this was the best solution and the Rector's resignation was accepted unanimously."

REV. GARDNER SMITH

Pearce's letter adds that the Rev. Karl Morgan Block, bishop of California, has "been informed of the circumstances and has given unqualified approval to what has been done." The bishop and a committee of the vestry will soon meet, to confer on the selection of a new Rector, he continued.

Cleared by County Commission:

Menlo Council Studies Industrial Park Annexation

Menlo Park city councilmen were last night to discuss legal ramifications and technicalities of the proposed annexation of 150 acres of Bohannon Industrial park to the city.

The way for the annexation was formally opened last Thursday night, as the county boundaries commission okayed the city's addition of the territory, northeast of Bayshore freeway.

And Menlo Park planning commissioners, noting deed restrictions in the area proposed to be annexed, have set Nov. 19 as date for a special study meeting, at which they will see if the Menlo Park zoning ordinance blends properly with the present subdividers' plans.

Meanwhile, it was learned this week, Redwood City councilmen have expressed "concern" over the fact that Redwood City was by-passed when David D. Bohannon organization, the owner, considered joining the high-value land to an exisiting municipality. The industrial strip adjoins both Menlo Park and Redwood.

Assistant City Manager John R. Johnson noted yesterday that the planning commission's zoning ordinance is highly restrictive in regard to industries, but that Bohannon Industrial park has been restrictive in setting up standards for purchasers and tenants of his land also.

The Nov. 19 meeting has been set up so that any technical disagreements can be ironed out before the area is taken into the city, he explained.

At a Monday night meeting, Redwood City's governing body heard Councilman Louis Weiss refer specifically to the proposed annexation of the industrial area to Menlo Park.

Councilman Weiss said he wondered if residential development of that city wasn't being "overvalued, in relation to industrial development," and asked that a citizens' committee be appointed to study the matter.

Redwood City's council was to look into this further, at an informal meeting set for last night.

AFTER CRASH

It is not a good idea to become involved in an auto accident when being "tailed" by police officers who suspect that you are speeding, Lester Jones, 35, of 1208 Sevier avenue, found out Friday.

At 5:03 p.m. that day Jones was proceeding east on Willow road when his auto collided with the rear of one operated by Leroy C. Yancey, 65, of 545 15th avenue, Atherton.

Jones had tried to avoid the crash. In fact a long skid ended with his car broadside to the path of traffic, witnesses said. But both Jones and Yancey had removed their cars to the side of the road by the time Menlo Park police arrived.

But there entered on the scene, right after the crash, Officer Robert Van Dover of the California Highway Patrol. He had been following Jones, Van Dover said, and had ascertained that he had been driving 60 miles per hour in a 35-mile per hour zone.

The patrolman was sure enough that his figure was right that he wrote a ticket for Jones.

Council Studies Survey Plan For Downtown

Menlo Park City councilmen, meeting last night instead of Tuesday because of the general election, were to consider a proposal by Stanford Research Institute which would determine whether or not more parking would be useful in the city's downtown business district.

The study would attempt to determine the ultimate potential retail sales and size of the business district, and would also attempt to show what area downtown Menlo Park will ultimately serve as a retail center, once Stanford University and Sharon estate lands are built up.

On the basis of this, it would be possible to show whether or not it will be economical for more parking spaces to be purchased through assessment districts.

Temporary Refuge for Historic Building:

Adobe Landmark Moves to School Grounds Friday

The old adobe structure that stood for some 125 years in the vicinity of Colby avenue, and that, for the last few weeks, has rested on blocks while interested persons sought to find a new location for the landmark, Friday will be moved to the grounds of Peninsula school.

According to John S. Wickett, realtor and director of the County Historical Association, the new resting place for the structure is expected to be only temporary. Directors and officials of the school have been cooperating enthusiastically in efforts to save the building, Wickett said, but feel they cannot undertake its permanent maintenance on the school grounds unless some form of endowment can be set up.

Meanwhile, Wickett said, the historical association is pressing a plan whereby the county might take over the building and maintain it as an historical monument.

Wickett declared that the building is the only surviving northern California example of its type of construction. It was built by making a frame of sticks and packing adobe mud between them.

Another fact about the landmark was disclosed this week, Wickett added, when he was informed that the inner walls are lined with Spanish-language newspapers of the 1840 era. These have since been covered up with wallboard, installed to make the building habitable in modern times.

As soon as the building is set down in a new spot, he said, he intends to remove the wallboard and investigate these newspapers of the pre-American days of the state.

Fire Chief Goes Back to School

Menlo Park Fire District Chief George Carter has gone "back to school," to attend a 20-week fire department administrator's course being presented in San Carlos.

The course will have on three-hour session a week, Carter said, and is currently being attended by about 30 of the area's fire department heads. Instruction is being given by the state department of educatin, and is designed for administrators at the chiefs' level, Chief Carter said.

School Drain Tie-in Seen With Atherton

Menlo Park Elementary School District trustees this week informally agreed to contact the town of Atherton, to find out if a drain from Encinal school grounds, north along Middlefield road to the Atherton drainage canal, can be made a part of one of the town's major drainage projects.

They agreed to take this course of action after School District Business Manager reported that adequate drains, which must be put in before landscaping can be installed, will cost a total of about $9000 for the school. But about $4000 of this, he said, might ultimately become a part of the drainage project.

Actually, the town of Atherton is not in charge of the drainage project involved. The Atherton town council is overseeing the formation of a special drainage district, however, which includes part of Atherton, part of Menlo Park, and a large parcel of unincorporated area.

Richert also reported that drainage at Fremont school will cost about $600. This includes some repaving of blacktop areas.

The district set aside $14,000, in its current year's budget, for landscaping improvements at Fremont and Encinal schools.

Richert said that according to a recent engineer's survey, total cost of such a job at Encinal would be about $41,000 and at Fremont, about $12,000. In both cases, however, installation of drains were a necessary preliminary.

Menlo Sergeant In SAC Competition

Staff Sergeant James B. Clearwater Jr. of Menlo Park, a crew chief of the Strategic Air Command's 27th Strategic Fighter Wing, will fly from Bengstrom Air Force Base, Texas, to Offutt Air Force Base in Nebraska this week, to take part in the SAC's first fighter competition.

He is the son of Colonel (ret.) and Mrs. James B. Clearwater of 301 Arbor road. An air force mechanic since 1952, Sgt. Clearwater has been working on F-84F Thunderstreak jets since that time.

At the Nebraska base, Sgt. Clearwater will participate in the competition as a member of the 36-plane strike force representing the 27th.

Redwood City Resident, 17, Back In Jail After Chase Ends Here

Frank A. Kaiser, 17, of 3191 Fairoaks drive in Redwood City, was back in Hillcrest juvenile home this week, after a 110 mile-per-hour chase in a stolen pickup truck ended in a 400-foot skid and a crash into a power pole in Menlo Park early Saturday.

A 15-year-old passenger in the truck suffered minor injuries.

The truck, a 1956 one reported stolen in Redwood City only a few hours earlier, was heavily damaged.

Palo Alto police, who were in hot pursuit of the fleeing vehicle when it entered Menlo Park, arrested the driver after a chase on foot. They later turned him over to Redwood City police who charged him with auto theft and sent him to the juvenile home. His record, they said, included several previous auto thefts. Kaiser was on parole from the California Youth Authority at the time of his arrest.

The chase, which was climaxed by the crash shortly before 4 a.m., started at Cowper street and Hamilton avenue. Officers Roland Jabaut and Richard Bailey reported. They'd attempted to stop the truck for a routine check of its occupants, owing to the lateness of the hour.

The driver, however, didn't wait to be checked; he started out, ran two stop lights, and headed for Menlo Park with the Palo Alto "prowl car" in immediate pursuit.

Crossing the Middlefield road bridge into this city, the car went out of control; it ended its long skid against the utility pole and a signal standard.

The driver suffered only bumps and bruises but 15-year-old Billy Eugene Simmons, also of Redwood City, suffered lacerations and cuts requiring emergency treatment at Palo Alto Hospital.

The truck was reported stolen at about 12:30 a.m. the same day. Wayne E. Wright of 2520 Spring street was identified as its owner.

No Damage Reported From Early Storm

Menlo Park and Atherton apparently came through last week's first light brush with winter weather with flying colors, according to police and firemen.

The firemen had none of the usual furnace fires which occur when heaters which have been out of use for a long time are fired up; the police of both cities said they couldn't find any accident reports which showed weather as a factor.

The firemen, in their summary, added that wiring in the district appeared to be in good shape. They weren't called on to send for utility men, either.

Last Wednesday night, Oct. 31, one Atherton resident called firemen to have a thermostat looked to when it failed to shut off his heater after the house got warm, but that was the closest the firemen came to a storm-caused fire.

The Menlo Park police reported a minor accident at Santa Cruz avenue and Avy avenue at 10:45 p.m. the same night, but they said that the weather was dry and clear at the time this occurred.

Involved were autos driven by James H Coffman, 60, of 83 Faxon road in the Atherton and Sygurd Bevery, 20, of 2095 Avy avenue. Coffman, who was headed north on Santa Cruz avenue, said he failed to see Bevery's auto until too late to avoid colliding with the latter, westbound car.

Coffman's auto had to be towed from the scene.

At Sacramento Meet:

M-A Junior Statesmen Anticipate UN 'Cease-Fire' Call by 24 Hours

The Junior Statesmen, in convention at Sacramento Nov. 3, heard the resolution introduced by Earl Crockett of Menlo-Atherton, resound for an hour and a half in heated debate. This resolution called for immediate cease-fire followed by police action by the UN in the Suez Canal Zone, and the establishment of a UN buffer strip between Israel and the Arab States. The measure was passed by an overwhelming majority vote after debate had been reopened for a second time.

It is noteworthy to mention that the Menlo-Atherton resolution predated by 24 hours a similar resolution in the UN.

Fifty-five members of the M-A chapter attended this statewide convention, which included 65 schools. Of the five resolutions presented on the floor, M-A delivered major addresses on four.

Earl Crockett and Marshall Moore spoke on the resolution pertaining to the Suez Canal crisis. Tom Angell put forward an incorporation on a resolution to continue aid to Yugoslavia, a measure which would give aid to other satellite countries wishing to seek independence from Moscow.

Clyde Olsen spoke on his resolution to change the line of presidential succession. Marshall Moor espoke a second time on the convention floor in favor of increasing the penalty for narcotics pushers only if the resolution would be amended to exact life imprisonment without parole instead of capital punishment.

Paul Weiden, M-A's budding parliamentarian, interjected remarks and corrections on points of order.

Following the outstanding performance of the Menlo-Atherton delegation, a tour of the capitol building was taken by the students. A banquet was held at 7:30 and a semi-formal ball climaxed the evening.

The chapter at M-A is making a follow-up of its splendid participation at the state level by hosting the next regional convention Jan. 19, 1957.

Miss Terry Esteva, Roger Leccombe, and Mr. and Mrs. John Di Franco, M-A faculty members, accompanied the students.

In accepting the appointment, Peeters said: "Last year 120 San Mateo County residents became ill with active tuberculosis—yet this disease can be prevented. The efforts of East Palo Alto residents will be needed to make this 50th Christmas Seal Sale a success. The fight against TB is not yet won."

Christmas Seals will be mailed to 90,000 homes in the county next week.

'Science' Subject Of M-A Assemblies

"Iron and Man" and "Adventure" were the subjects of William Platt, who spoke to Menlo-Atherton High School students at the M-A Cultural Board's first assembly of the year. The Cultural Board is the student organization which plans assembly programs throughout the year as one of its most important functions.

Platt is a resident of Burlingame and is very active in Boy Scout work there. He is affectionately known to some 13,000 Boy Scouts on the peninsula as "Uncle Bill."

Due to the large enrollment at Menlo-Atherton, it is necessary to divide the school into four assembly groups. Platt addressed two assemblies Monday on his first subject and two on Tuesday with a talk about the new kind of adventure that is open to yuth today, especially in science fields.

"Iron and Man" illustrated the progress of raw iron ore, through refinement, to valuable metal. Both talks were designed to stimulate the interest of students to pursue scientific careers.

Partridge Street Rezoning Plan Set for Hearing

The lots, which currently contain a few duplexes, boarding houses and single family residences, is zoned R-2 at present. The petition was signed by more than 60 per cent of the property owners along the street.

In other actions, the commissioners:

Set for hearing Dec. 3 a request by Mrs. Elsie M. Finley to rezone two lots off of Menalto avenue, opposite Elm street from single family to two-family zoning.

Set for hearing Dec. 3 a request of Mrs. A. F. Carlson to rezone her lot on Santa Margarita avenue from one-family to two-family zoning.

New Commercial Development Seen for Willow Road Area

An extensive building development facing Willow road west of the Veterans Administration Hospital came to light Monday night with the request of Cornish and Carey, 151 University avenue, Palo Alto, for a resubdivision of the property.

Submitted with the request to create three lots on the parcel were plans for a gasoline station, a small office building and a 28-unit apartment building on the site.

The office building would be a two-story structure, housing three major tenants with spaces for six cars on the ground level of the building. Stone and glass would comprise most of the building.

A gas station would be situated on the portion of the property immediately adjacent to the hospital if the proposal is accepted by the city council.

Then, behind the office building and service station, would be a 28-unit apartment house with swimming pool. Access to the apartments would be from Willow road.

Previously, the planners had approved conversion of a building housing the Oriental Gardens at 120 Middlefield road into a sukiyaki house. First submitted to the commission at their October meeting, the restaurant was refused architectural approval because there was no rear access to the building. Plans approved Monday night made provisions for a rear entrance to the kitchen.

Architectural approval was granted to Shell Oil Co. for modernization of their service station at the corner of El Camino Real and Santa Cruz avenue. Plans call for building a new station on the back corner of the lot and placing the pumps in a large open area to the front.

NEW BANK BUILDING TO RISE HERE

NEWEST BANKING UNIT for Menlo Park—when it's completed in an estimated 10 months—will be the American Trust Co. branch office at Santa Cruz avenue and Chestnut street, a model of which is shown above.

Ground Broken:

Construction Starts on New Bank Building in Downtown Menlo Park

Ground was broken this week on a new home for the Menlo Park office of American Trust Company. The announcement came today from Fielding McDearmon, bank manager, who said that construction is expected to take about 10 months.

The new bank, located at the south corner of Santa Cruz avenue and Chestnut street, directly opposite the existing office, will present an attractive appearance of red brick, broad expanses of glass, and aluminum trim. There will be planted areas at both the front and the rear. The bank was designed by the architectural firm of Stone, Mulloy, Marraccini and Patterson to blend with the general appearance of the community it will serve.

The structure will measure 70 by 100 feet. A partial mezzanine will give it a total area of about 8400 square feet.

In the rear of the bank will be a drive-in window and a parking lot of 27 cars. Customers will thus be able to transact their banking business without leaving their cars, if they choose, or park conveniently and enter the bank by a rear door.

The bank will also feature a night depository and letter drop to accommodate those who wish to make deposits after banking hours.

The roof structure will be supported by single span steel trusses which will eliminate interior columns and add to the bank's spaciousness.

NEW MATERIALS

Plans include the use of acoustical materials overhead; recessed fluorescent lighting, and a four-zone, thermostatically controlled heating, ventilating and air-cooling system.

According to McDearmon, there will be 10 tellers' windows, four note windows, three spacious coupon booths, and a large safe deposit lobby and safe deposit window. The officers' platform will include a conference room.

The mezzanine will be the location of an attractive lunchroom and lounge for the bank's staff.

The bank is being built by Thompson Brothers, contractors, of Palo Alto.

Charles Horton Heads New Office

Wilson, Johnson and Higgins, California and Nevada investment firm, announced today the appointment of Charles C. Horton as manager of the firm's new branch office in Menlo Park.

A graduate of Stanford University and the Stanford Business School, Horton, now a resident of Atherton, has been a familiar name in Pacific coast and New York investment circles for 17 years.

The Menlo Park office is Wilson, Johnson and Higgins' eighth branch office in the California-Nevada region and "was opened to facilitate service to the firm's growing Peninsula clentele," said James Stewart, also of Atherton and active in that community's civic affairs.

Frank Revere Gets New Post

Frank G. Rovere has been named home office casualty manager of the Industrial Indemnity Co., it was announced from San Francisco last week.

Rovere joined the firm in 1945 as an underwriter, and has gained experience in several of the company's divisions, according to President Thomas G. McGuire, who announced the appointment.

A graduate of the University of San Francisco, Rovere holds a law degree from Golden Gate college.

He resides with his wife and daughter at 1735 Bay Laurel drive in Menlo Park.

Menlo Resident Contest Winner

W. N. Greenham, 1255 Santa Cruz avenue, Menlo Park, has won a new electric mixer in the nationwide $100,000 Housepower contest being sponsored by the electric industry.

The contest is a feature of the industry's program to highlight the need for full housepower—the capacity of a household wiring system to accommodate all the electrical conveniences available to modern homemakers.

ACCIDENT

An auto operated by Mrs. Irene M. Tiemeyer, 42, of 507 Bay road, was backed into a panel delivery truck across the street when Mrs. Tiemeyer left the driveway of her home Monday, police report. The truck was owned by Hugh F. Wilson of Palo Alto.

Railroad Lays Sceond Track Along Cut-Off

Southern Pacific construction crews are installing a second track from Redwood City toward the Dumbarton bridge, east of Marsh road, in a project designed to keep the Middlefield road crossing clear of standing trains.

J. H. Yong, superintendent of S.P.'s Western division, says the project will permit trains to clear the crossing while they're waiting to cross the bridge.

"The new section of double track adds a 4000 foot section on which a train can stand while its waiting for another train to clear," Long said.

Mechanical track-laying equipment is being used to aid the crews in speeding the project to completion. S.P. officials expect the project to be finished in about three weeks.

At a near-by location, other Southern Pacific workmen this week began construction of a temporary trestle at Redwood City, the first step toward a new overpass of the Bayshore highway. The trestle will carry trains across the project while contractors are constructing the overpass.

Girl Scout Neighborhood Training Session Slated

Before Planners:

Interpretations Aid Swim School, Pet Hospital Establishments Here

Menlo Park Planning Commissioners were called upon to solve a "tough one" in approving a $50,000 pet hospital near Willow road and Bayshore Freeway Monday night.

Later the same evening, the planners had to make an exception to parking requirements in another ordinance when they approved plans for a "teaching" swimming pool at the corner of Glenwood avenue and San Antonio street.

Dr. W. W. Eastep's proposed pet hospital on a triangle of land bounded by Bayshore freeway, the Willow road overpass and old Willow road received an okay from the planners after they decided the structure was a hospital and not a kennel.

Pet hospitals are permitted in the zoning or the area; kennels are not.

The planners' motion to approve the hospital, which contains about 60 cages and 28 runways for animals, was subject to several conditions designed to eliminate any noise from animals housed in the structure.

Only negaitve vote on the motion to get the veternarian architectural control was cast by Commissioner Phillip O'Donnell.

INTERPRETATION

Another problem confronted the commission during the same meeting when they were asked, by Chuck Thompson of Palo Alto, to approve plans for the pool.

Under a strict interpretation of the zoning ordinance the establishment would have to provide two square feet of parking for every square foot of building or pool.

Due to the nature of the business, however, the commissioners decided that parking requirements would be so limited by the pool's customers that they could give approval to the business in spite of the fact that only seven parking spaces were shown on the plot plan.

Their action followed an explanation by Thompson that the pool will be built to accommodate only 16 persons at one time. The proposed pool is to replace an old building at Glenwood and San Antonio.

Younger said that all nominees will be notified as to the exact time and place of the exemanition.

As We See It:

NOT HOPELESS

"Hopeless" is the word applied to the desperate Hungarian fight for freedom.

We view the battle as far from hopeless. Today's fighters face overwhelming odds; perhaps they cannot win. But that they have the spirit to fight after years of repression spells again the doom of Soviet-Communist world domination.

Here in Menlo Park, we have freedom, and we cherish it. Would we have the spirit to fight for it if the invader's tanks were in our streets as they are in Budapest? We hope we would, and lingering doubts of our own spirit are reduced by the Hungarian example.

Far from hopeless, that fight illuminates the hope of the world and proves to us that tyranny cannot ultimately prevail.

WORTH AN EFFORT

We enthusiastically second the plea of the San Mateo County Historical Association for saving the old adobe formerly located on Colby avenue.

This young, vigorous area of ours has all too few remaining links with the past. Such links, we believe, are worth preserving. Even the most modern gyrocompass is meaningless unless we know where we are when we set it . In the same way, the future course of civilization cannot be charted into the unknown without some idea of whence we have come.

With destruction of each landmark of the past, our understanding of that past is more diffused.

Do you remember the vaqueros of the Rancho de las Pulgas who rode this bay-side plain more than a century ago? No, but the old adobe recalls them. It was built to shelter them when they were caught by nightfall too far from the great estate's headquarters, located in what we know now as Belmont.

Those vaqueros, spending the night in the building, likely might recall the sight of a gaunt priest named Serra, painfully treading the footpath that we know as El Camino Real.

Thus, in one jump, this old structure takes us back to the first chapter of the story of California.

It rests now on blocks, moved from its original site to make way for progress. So far, all efforts to find a new location for it have been balked by such considerations as zoning rules and modern building codes. To judge such a structure by these standards is like appraising the Mona Lisa in terms of the current price of paints and canvas.

Within recent months, such strict application of modern rules cost us another landmark of our area, the gatehouse to the Linden Towers estate of James Flood. To destroy so soon another, even more significant, structure would argue us indeed as shallow and rootless a race as we often seem to others.

FOR ALL OF US

Menlo Park's Chamber of Commerce is about to launch a drive for membership. We wish the effort all success; may it exceed the membership committee's highest hopes and more than double the organization's present roster of 235.

Let's take an objective look at our Chamber of Commerce. What is it, why is it and what does it do for you and me?

The Chamber is made up of men and women who have joined to promote the prosperity and general welfare of the community. That means the welfare of the whole community, its residential as well as its commercial and industrial components.

The Chamber exists to do a necessary job that can be done in no other way. Its job consists of many different projects, some specific, some general, some large, some small.

It encourages newcomers to move here and establish homes, and it assists them individually to learn the facts they want to know before taking up residence. It encourages new industry — of a type suitable to Menlo Park — to locate here. It endeavors to encourage patronage of Menlo Park stores and service establishments. It strives to protect and increase the attractiveness of our community in every way.

All these efforts benefit you and me, whether we are in business, whether we own property or whether we merely reside here.

If you live here, but own no property and operate no business in Menlo Park, the Chamber's existence helps assure you of a continuation of the pleasant living and the friendly, convenient shopping that you now enjoy. If you are in business here, the Chamber helps assure you of continued operation under good conditions with a fair profit for your efforts.

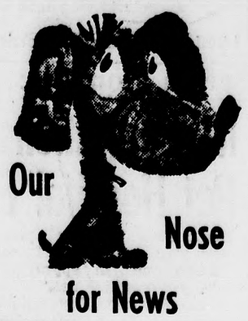

If you own a home in Menlo Park, even though you work elsewhere, you should be even more deeply concerned, perhaps, than anyone else with the operations of your Chamber of Commerce.

The value of your property directly reflects the way the rest of the world feels about Menlo Park. If many are attracted here to live, the laws of supply and demand maintain the value of your home. If Menlo Park's business district is prosperous and clean, your shopping is made pleasanter and your town wears a more attractive face. If more suitable industry establishes plants here, the city's tax base is broadened and your tax bill is the lower.

On the contrary, if the community stagnates, if the shopping district gets down-at-the-heel, if no industry — or the wrong kind of industry — locates here, Menlo Park could deteriorate; the convenience and pleasure of residence here would decline; property values would shrink.

For all of us in this community, there is a great deal at stake in Menlo Park's progress, prosperity and attractiveness. A strong, active Chamber of Commerce is one of our greatest assurances that we keep and improve what we have.

That is why we wish the Chamber well in its forthcoming membership drive. Your membership — individual or commercial — is needed to keep the Chamber strong and help it work for you.

TELLS US:

. . . That a couple of annual milestones have been passed in Menlo Park.

1. Postmaster Harry B. Morey reports that he's started receiving letters addressed to Santa Claus.

2. The firemen had an unexpected last grass fire last week.

It occurred along the railroad tracks, near the civic center. With the new fall nip in the air, they figure it was about the finale for the current season.

* * *

. . . That the Stewart S. Lowery property on Oak Grove avenue, in Atherton, which the Menlo Park Elementary School District wasn't exactly invited to purchase a month ago, is now for sale.

The 10-acre property was considered, during discussions held last summer, as a possible site for a new elementary school. But attorneys for the estate said the owner was unwilling to sell.

The owner, however, died suddenly about three weeks ago—just after the school district's board agreed to abandon plans to try to condemn some of the land.

And last week, real estate operators began calling subdividers to ask them to make bids on the property.

* * *

It's not often that Menlo Park Fire District firemen get long-distance emergency calls.

But they got one Saturday evening.

A Clayton drive householder had journeyed to Alameda that evening, and while visiting friends there, suddenly remembered that she'd been painting during the afternoon and had left some papers on the kitchen stove. She called the firemen and explained that she was afraid the pilot light might ignite them.

The firemen agreed.

So they went to her home and, with their usual eclat, let themselves in and removed the papers from the stove.

* * *

Those sprites who went "Trick or Treating" on Hallowe'en in search of money for UNICEF rather than for goodies for themselves came up with some mighty good things, reports Mrs. Anthony Donofrio, president of the Oak Knoll School PTA, whose organization headed the drive.

The sprites collected a total of $51.49 — possibly more, if other funds haven't been turned in.

The money should be taken, she said, to the Oak Knoll School office.

* * *

. . . As, if and when Bohannon Industrial park is annexed to the city, Menlo Park will lose a little of its classic similarity, in its outline as shown on the map, to Canada.

Considering that the Menlo Park were the U. S.'s northern neighbor—on the basis of the similarity of outlines, of course—one would find that the happy residents of lower Pope street aren't looking across San Francisquito creek at all, but across "the great lakes, at Detroit." And Oak Knoll school and adjacent areas have to stand, in this simile, as "Vancouver Island."

Carrying this thing further, one finds that residents of Lindenwood are inhabiting the cold, inhospitable waters of "Hudson's Bay," and the resident of Felton Gables are actually on "Babbin Island."

Take it from there.

CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The Stanford Natural History Club held its second meeting of the fall quarter last night when Dr. Edward S. Ross, curator of Entomology of the California Academy of Sciences, San Francisco, spoke. Your City's Business:

City Government Gains Show at Cities Meet

By CHARLES P. BURGESS
City Councilman, Menlo Park

As has been the case each year since the war, each League of California Cities Annual Conference has been larger than the one the year before. The registration (including wives and guests) for the one in Los Angeles last week was 3097, more than 10 per cent greater than last year's.

Although perhaps a majority of the delegates were full time city officials, the attendance of mayors and councilmen, who with rare exceptions have to take time off from their businesses and professions to be present, accounted for at least one-third of the registration.

This speaks well for municipal government in California, for although there are entertainment events, and numerous small social gatherings develop spontaneously, these are sandwiched in between a rigorous work program.

Menlo Park was well represented at the conference. All of the members of the city council, three planning commissioners, a recreation commissioner, the assistant city manager, the chief of police, the recreation director, and the city attorney were in attendance. Chief Carter of the Menlo Park Fire District also was present.

The list of speakers is quite lengthy, most of whom were city officials having particular qualifications to talk on the subject assigned. There were also outside speakers of some note, including Governor Knight, Attorney General Brown, State Senator Collier, State Controller Kirkwood, and others of somewhat less public prominence.

Trying to get everything out of the conference that is of value is quite frustrating. The Monday morning and Wednesday morning sessions were general ones, held in the Biltmore Theatre, at which everyone in attendonce could be present.

But the rest of the meetings (except for one luncheon and the annual league dinner) were for the departments.

Mayors and councilmen, city attorneys, finance officers, police chiefs, fire chiefs, city managers, health officers, city planners, public works officers, and park and recreation officials held section meetings simultaneously.

I spent some time with city attorneys and planners as well as mayors and councilmen, but there were a number of programs I would like to have attended in addition to these, but could not because they were in session simultaneously. Fortunately, many of the papers presented were reproduced in quantity, and I hope to get copies of some of these that I missed.

From time to time in the future, as space permits, I shall review in this column some of what I consider the more significant addresses at the conference.

The new president of the League is Mayor Ted Meriam of Chico; the new first vice president, Mayor Norris Poulson of Los Angeles, and the new second vice president and treasurer, Mayor Chuck Erreca of Los Banos.

Walter:

GETS GAY

Walter the Weathermouse was wearing a "cold fire" pink shirt, a Hollywoodish pair of sun glasses, and a pair of blazing cerise Bermuda shorts as he strolled into the office this week.

"Aren't you afraid some of your ancient enemies will see you, in a get-up like that?" we queried.

"Pooh," quoth the mouse, as he extracted the bitt of a long cigaret holder from between his choppers. "The worst of them have all gone home.

"I refer, of course, to the Gop-er and the Demo-cat, who I don't think we'll hear from for some little while. At least, until they've had a little sleep."

County Comment:

All Candidates Can Now Figure Whether It Was Really Worth It

By FLOYD M. McCUE
Editor and Publisher, Redwood City Star-Advertiser

ELECTION AFTERMATH

The costs of running for election have skyrocketed like everything else and even the candidates themselves are publicly making comments.

It will be interesting to see the cost figures filed by the candidates within the next few weeks, but as is always the case there are thousands of dollars spent to get votes that do not go through the regular campaign headquarters.

Both parties have made repeated requests for contributions to meet the higher costs of newspaper ads, television and radio, posters and bill boards, not to mention the heavy traveling expenses from district to district.

Some estimate that it takes $20,000 or more to campaign on a county-wide basis and approximately half that amount for the local assembly district. Legislators are studying ways and means to curb the spending for political office, but no one seems to have the answer.

Political candidates are not supposed to have to spend much of their own money to get into office, but they will tell you this is not true.

Campaign pledges are easy to make but much harder to collect. All funds are supposed to be run through the central committee of the party finance group but friends come up with donations direct to the candidate.

Some expect favors in return to be sure, but we think most of them have the desire to assist in what they believe will help elect the best candidate.

But in the end the result is the same. The way political parties pick their candidates at the June primary through a screening process leave the election a closed issue as far as campaign funds are involved. What individual can buck the party choice with the thousands of dollars of campaign funds behind him?

Probably one of the hottest after-election decisions to be made in the months to come is the follow-up on the county charter changes. Will the board of supervisors replace some members of the commission as their terms expire?

With the commission split 3-2 on the amendments things may boil up in that important county department. Some board members, we're sure, want some new blood on the commission and will be ready to proposed new members next year. This promised word battle should be come the headlines around the courthouse unless the differences of election quiet down.

Speaking of the county amendments, we took another trip to the doghouse last week. The agent for the employers' union called and gave us a balling out for stating that the chairman of the committee opposed to the amendments was also attorney for the union

Presumably we were misinformed and haven't been able to find out what connection there is between the two, if any. We never like to make incorrect statements.

For that we apologize, but we're still going to try to find out if there ever was a connection.

COLD—BUT IMPROVING

Most observers visiting the new Hall of Justice call it beautiful but cold. The long corridors and spaciousness of the place do lend to a friendly atmosphere. The offices, however, seem colorful and efficiently laid out.

Superior court judges are having some difficulty with their private quarters. Their offices are without waiting rooms and people wishing to do business with a judge must wait in the hall if the judge happens to have another person in his chambers.

But these complaints are nothing compared to those of Attorneys James T. O'Keefe Jr., and Wayne R. Millington. O'Keefe had the honor of conducting the first case in the new courtrooms, just as his dad did 50 years ago in the old courthouse following the earthquake.

But O'Keefe and Millington want the courts moved back to the old quarters. You see both of these well known barristers are chain cigar smokers.

In the old courthouse the marble columns outside the courtrooms had a convenient ledge where they could place their unfinished cigars. They had their own private little "ash tray," but in the new building there isn't a single spot where they can hide their stogie.

After all, when the supervisors spend about three million in taxpayers' money they should think of the little things like convenient ledges out of the public eye for the last inch of a nickel cigar.

On the other hand, maybe it would be cheaper if county officials could find some way of providing the attorneys with a few new cigars.

Constance Flood Case Reviewed In New Book

One of the south peninsula's best-publicized legal cases is soon to be reviewed in book form, with publication of "The Strange Case of Constance Flood" scheduled for publication Nov. 23.

The story is written by Willa Okker Iverson of San Mateo, who covered the court trials which attended the case in the late 1920's and early 1930's.

The story concerns a young woman who had apparently been acknowledged as the daughter of James L. Flood, to workers and others on the fabulous Linden Towers estate which is now Lindenwood.

The woman's father was the son of Comstock baron James Claire Flood, who built the $3,000,000 showplace in the late 1970's.

When Flood died in 1926, after a career as a financier and phinanthropist, he left an estate of $18,000,000 to his wife, Maude, and their two children.

Shortly thereafter there appeared on the scene a Mrs. Constance Gavin, who filed a Notice of Appearance, stating that she was Flood's daughter, and demanding a part of the estate. She claimed she was Flood's daughter by his first wife, Rose.

According to older residents of the area who remember Flood, the girl was acknowledged by him as a daughter, but she was adopted by the first Mrs. Flood. When Flood's first wife died and the financier remarried, the second wife declined to consider Constance Flood a member of the family, and the girl spent the remainder of her minority years in a convent.

Later, she married.

The author, Mrs. Iverson, covered the trials which ensued after the filing of the notice of appearance for the United Press.

This is her first book.

MENLO PARK — Stanford Research Institute will open a European office in Zurich, Switzerland, shortly after Jan. 1, it was announced today by Dr. Weldon B. Gibson, associate director who heads the Institute's international activities.

He said a principal aim of the office will be to establish a two-way flow of information between European and American industrial and research organizations seeking new research, production or marketing relationships.

Down to Earth:

Feed Trees This Winter for Healthy Growth in Spring

By TERRY LEE

This may seem a strange time to suggest feeding shade trees, but it isn't. During warm winter days a tree's hair roots are somewhat active, reaching out for and absorbing soil moisture containing nutrients. When spring comes this food is taken up eagerly to the treetop. It energizes the unfolding buds and aids the tree in making twig growth.

Feeding shade trees during winter and early spring sends the trees into the new season with added vigor. This is what trees need most. Weak trees go into decline and are easy prey for insects and diseases.

Many healthy trees may also have had a battle with the weather. A winter storm can wrench a tree's roots, strip its bark and break its branches. Our long, dry summers "cook" the tender feeding roots and wither leaves, decidedly weakening even strong trees.

Summer insects riddle leaves, suck sap and bore into the wood, and rots and fungus growths cause serious decline.

NEED BOOST

All these trees need a boost in vigor to seal wounds, grow new root hairs and leaves. But even without damage and diseases, it can be said generally that most shade trees constantly suffer from starvation.

In their natural habitat of the forest, trees get all the food they need. In the average home they lack any semblance of the organic mulch that vitalizes forest soil. Even a well tended lawn means less moisture and food for tree roots, because rain runs off lawn faster than open ground, and the grass itself consumes much food and moisture.

Many homes may have poor soil to begin with, or chunks of discarded building material may lie a few feet below the surface where a tree is planted. Street trees have restricted root systems, and where normal growth is hindered, decline can set in. The surest way to halt this process is to feed the trees.

You can make a simple test for vigor. Note the twig growth of the past year and compare it with the growth of previous years, and compare it with other trees in the neighborhood. Examine the buds. If they are fat, sturdy and shiny the tree is healthy. Remember if last summer's leaves were full-sized and deep green, or were they off-color, smaller and fewer.

Many people wonder if an insect would not rather eat healthy green leaves, than poor, off-color ones. The answer is no. It has been established that healthy trees, by their pulsating sap and laying down of new wood, actually drawn or crush to death many invading borers and beetles. Many diseases cannot enter except through thin or broken bark, and a healthy tree heals too fast.

Some trees require more feeding than others. Norway spruce, elms, maples and oaks need ample feeding. Lawn and street trees should be fed every two years as insurance against serious trouble. If a tree has been gravely weakened, then annual feeding for several years is recommended.

WAIT TWO YEARS

Newly planted trees should not be fed immediately. Wait two years until the roots have become established. If the planting hole has been prepared with enriched soil (leaf mold, rotted manure) it will have enough food.

Use a well balances commercial fertilizer for feeding. It should be placed in two-inch diameter holes, 15 inches deep, and three feet apart. Begin in circles about four feet from the trunk and continue to well beyond the branch spread. Home owners can punch holes with a crowbar. Tree specialists use power driven drills. Fill the hole two-thirds full with fertilizer and cover with plain soil. The tree should have ample moisture, which it will get from the rains we usually have in December. If it does not rain, soak heavily the area where you made the holes.

GARDEN CALENDAR WEEK OF NOV. 8

Early blooming chrysanthemums can be cut away back after they are through flowering, which is a great advantage over the way bulbs have to be treated. Plants in bud should be kept soaked with water. If you have not tried this easy flower, buy them in cans now while you can see the exact color and shape. Cuttings are taken in the spring when the new growth is four inches high. Label the clumps now.

* * *

Perennials are usually sold in lots of three, bulbs by the dozen, 50 or 100. It would be foolish to buy less than three of any one variety of perennials or a dozen of a bulb, or the blooms would be hard to find next spring. Plants are always more effective set in groups, with adequate spacing in between.

Good fall vegetables are cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, and brussels sprouts. They can be set in as tiny plants purchased from the nursery, and will grow above anything you have planted as a ground cover for the vegetable garden.

It is a popular misconception that frost is necessary to produce the brilliant colors on the foliage of trees and shrubs. What is needed is merely night temperatures below 45 degrees. This traps the sugars in a leaf, and as it ferments it increases the intensity of the color already there, but masked by the green chlorophyll. The breakdown continues until the tannin present finally cause the leaves to turn brown.

Though burning permits allow home owners to burn in the morning, these days when there is liable to be low clouds or heavy fog, any burning really creates a smog problem in the neighborhood. This cannot dissipate until afternoon, and by then a few people are pretty angry. Check the weather, and don't burn when the atmosphere is thick and still. It is just as bad when the wind is bowing hard, for gusts of wind may toss great billows of smoke in your neighbor's yard.

Girl Scouts Get New Camp Site

A new camp site for Sequoia Girl Scouts has been established in Alpine County, 25 miles from Pinecrest, and will be available next summer for troops who wish to go there to "rough" it.

It is being cleared for next summer's use but will not be completed with the necessary buildings until 1958. It will be used by older, intermediate and senior Girl Scouts.

Located at an elevation of 6100 feet, the site has both level areas and rolling hills, surrounding mountains, no poison oak, a stream and a river and is only a short distance from a main highway.

Mrs. J. F. Zeigler of San Carlos was chairman of the site selection committee and the development included Mr. and Mrs. F. Clifford Davis, chairmen, Menlo Park; Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Denton, East Palo Alto; and, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kane of Atherton.

Beer production in California in 1955 totaled five million barrels.

Oaks Play Contra Costa Vikings For 1956 Finale

Three Menlo First Stringers Out of Saturday's Lineup

By CHARLES GAGE

Menlo College's Oaks will be without the services of three first stringers when they take on East Contra Costa Saturday at 8 p.m. The contest, to be played in Pittsburg, will be the Oaks final game of the 1956 season.

Fullback Roger Rymen will be out of play with a bad hip joint, while end Steve Sepsey has an injured ankle. Guard Gene Barsotti is still in the hospital recovering from a concussion received earlier in the season. Also on the injured list for the game is second string fullback Jack Hansen, who has a bad ankle.

NO FULLBACKS

Since the Oaks have no fullbacks, Coach Bo Molenda said he will change the team's formation somewhat. A halfback will replace the fullback and be placed as a flanker. One of the other halfbacks will do the blocking.

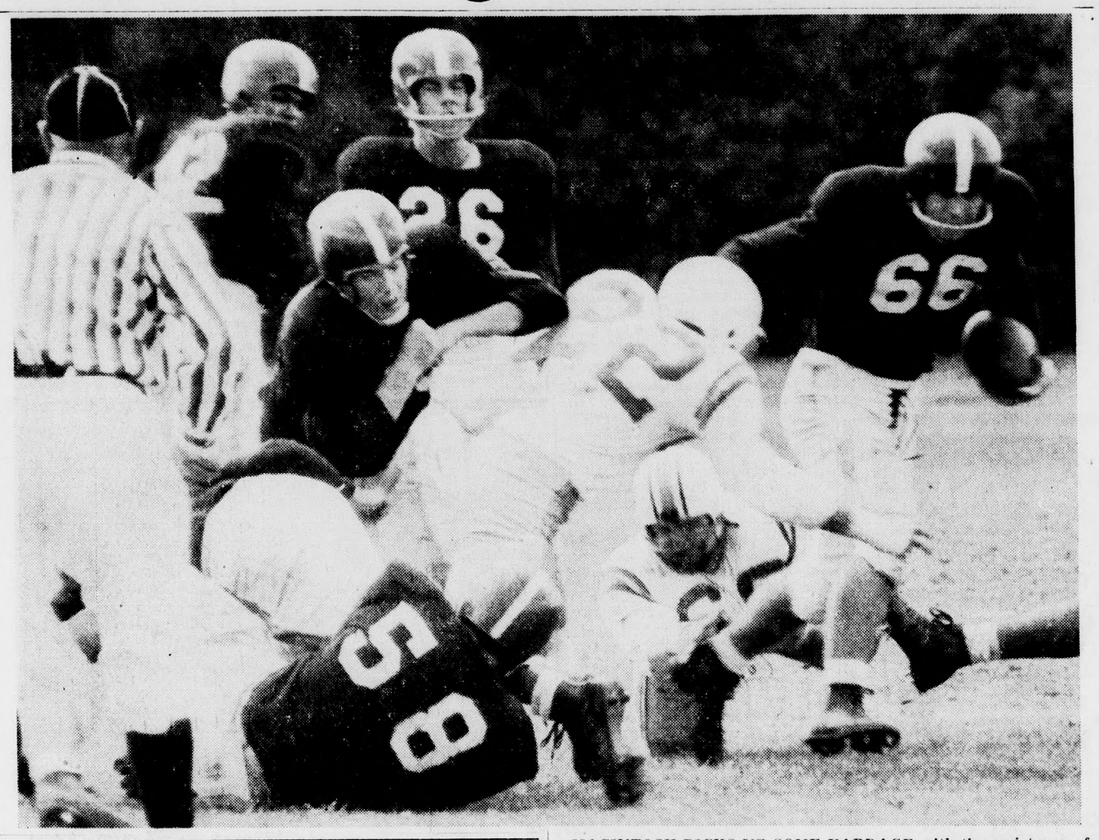

Menlo will be facing a solid, large ball club with an undefeated league record when they tangle with the Vikings. The Contra Costa team, which runs from a split T, has defeated Hartnell and Vallejo. They tied Monterey 6-6 and lost to Orange Coast to give them a season record of five wins, one loss and a tie.

3-1 RECORD

The Oaks go into the game with three wins and a loss in league play. They suffered their first loss since 1954 when the San Jose Jaguars upset them 16-14 last week.

Probable starting lineup for the Oaks is John Stoney and either Jack Laurance or Bill Moffat at ends; Tom Gray and Heiman Cheim at tackles; Bernie Chalifoux and Lloyd Brubaker at gaurds, and Arthur Virgo at center.

Tom Maudlin will start at quarterback while John Horrillo, Eric MacKintosh and Jerry Steele will be the other backs.

MACINTOSH PICKS UP SOME YARDAGE with the assistance of Bernie Chalifoux (number 58) and Arthur Virgo (behind Chalifoux) when the Menlo Oaks beat the Hartnell Panthers 39-0 here Oct. 27. Other Menlo players in the picture are John Horrillo (number 42) and Tom Maudlin (number 26).

Frosh-Soph Water Poloists Meet Sequoia

Coach Nick Biondi's Menlo-Atherton High School water polo teams were to meet Sequoia yesterday, with little doubt as ot the outcome in the varsity division but with the frosh-sophs playing their "crucial."

The coach's confidence in his lettermen was firmly based on a 10-1 win earlier this season. The Cherobabes, however, outdid the local lower classmen and only a win could get the locals back into a tie for first place.

Meanwhile, during the past few days, the varsity's undefeated record lengthened still further, with defeats of Lincoln High School, 9-2, last week. It might get lengthened again Friday, when the ears journey north to tangle with Capuchino's Mustangs.

And last week, in a specially-got-up practice game, a local junior varsity team journeyed to Los Altos to trounce the Hillsiders, 7-3.

In a preliminary frosh-soph game, the locals came out on top, 5-3.

The Junior Varsity—made up of water poloists who haven't had much time in competition but who may have to carry the ball some time in the future—played a strictly "for fun" game but had Bob Lorton with four points, Jim Foley with one point and Lee Bowen with two points to give them their score.

For yesterday's games, Biondi reported as the Recorder went to press, he would start the following:

Spinner Johnston, Charles Johnson and Bill Adams as forwards; Pete Kaldveer, Keith Hollueffer and Jeff Pinto, guards and Fred Walton, goalie.

Acorns Defend League Crown Against Emery

Currently riding high, wide and handsome at the top of the Bay Counties League, the Menlo School Acorns meet Emeryville tomorrow afternoon on the local gridiron.

The Emeryville squad has a unique habit of knocking Menlo teams out of championships. Two years ago, Emery defeated the Acorns in the final game of the season to tie with Menlo for first place.

In last year's gridiron clash the Oaklanders again emerged victorious to give them the BCL crown and knock the Acorns into second place. The same episodes were repeated in basketball and baseball as well.

Running from a split T and stressing a running attack, Emeryville has a fairly light but fast line and a hard-charging back field.

Menlo Coach Jack Lercari is hoping for a clear dry day tomorrow so that Menlo's running backs will have a firm footing on which to operate. Last week's game against San Rafael proved that Menlo and mud don't mix—the Acorns barely edged San Rafael, 13-8.

Lercari has been stressing fundamentals during turnouts this week. He'll probably use quarterback Pete Cotton's passing and faking abilities in the Emeryville game.

Captains for tomorrow's game are Maynard Spence and Del Federman.

Jaguars Drop Oaks to Break Winning Streak

Menlo College's winning ways came to an abrupt halt Saturday when a fired-up squad from San Jose defeated the Oaks 16-14 in a spirited contest at Menlo.

The loss snapped the Oaks' 20-game winning streak and all but eliminated them from contention for the Junior Rose Bowl. Previously, City College of San Francisco was the last team to defeat the Menlo squad and that was three years ago in the 1954 season.

The deciding two points of the game with two minutes and four seconds remaining in the event. Bill Fountain had intercepted a Jaguar pass and returned it to the 16. A clipping penalty against Menlo put the ball on the one yard line. On the next play, quarterback Tom Maudlin was snowed under by Phil Cordero and Chuck Maraldo for a safety.

San Jose's Don Munoz electrified some 3000 fans as he took the opening kickoff on his own 12 and raced 88 yards unmolested down the sidelines for the score. Chuck Maraldo added the extra point and San Jose led 7-0 with less than a minute gone in the game.

SNAGS PASS

The Jags got their second touchdown in the second period after John Ventry leaped high in the air to take a Maudlin pass away from the awaiting arms of Steve Sepsey. Ventry then picked up some blocking and raced 56 yards down the sidelines, being stopped by Tom Gray on the Menlo 14.

San Jose scored seven plays later when Tony Ranada went over from the three. A holding penalty during the conversion try put the Jaguars back to the 17, where Jerry Sutton tossed a pass to Maraldo in the end zone for the extra point.

The Oaks scored both of their touchdowns in the second quarter. The first came when Maudlin hit Sepsey in the end zone with a 35 yard pass. Roger Ryman converted to tie the score at 7-7.

John Horrillo scored the second Oak TD late in the same period. He started the Oak drive to paydirt by returning a San Jose kickoff 23 yards to the Menlo 40. Key play of the drive, however, was a Maudlin to Stoney pass since the Oaks were unable to get moving on the ground.

HITS STONEY

The quarterback hit Stoney with a 40-yard pass on a crucial third and nine situation. After making a catch between two defenders, Stoney was brought down on the Jaguar six.

Horrillo then went over n the next play to score. Ryman converted to again tie the score, this time at 14 all.

Cubs Take On Carlmont Frosh

Menlo-Atherton High School's freshmen football team journeys to Carimont tomorrow to take on the Highland Laddies in the next meeting of their current round.

Last Friday, in the reasonably successful season thus far, Coach Sam Lugonja's Cubs bested Sequoia's Papooses, 20-0.

Cadet Fumble Gives Game To Acorns

A last minute fumble and some quick thinking by tackle Art Morford saved the day for Menlo School's Acorns when they defeated San Rafael Military Academy 13-8 last weekend.

The Acorns were trailing in the fourth period when Morford grabbed the loose ball and went 20 yards for a touchdown and a victory for the local squad.

First Menlo score came when Kim Pearman took a pass from Pete Cotton on a play good for 40 yards and six points for the local squad. The try for point was good.

San Rafael tied it up soon afterwards when Jack Shepard sneaked over from the two yard line. The Cadets were unable to convert, and the score was tied at 6-6.

The score remained knotted until late in the third period when Menlo, with the ball on their three yard line, went into punt formation. The ball was centered over kicker Maynard Spence's head. He reached the ball and was swarmed by San Rafael tacklers for a safety. The Cadets then led 8-6.

Morford's spectacular recovery in the fourth period came after a San Rafael kicker, attempting to punt from his own 30, fumbled the ball slightly. Dick Lawson moved in from his linebacker spot and jarred the football loose from the Cadet. Morford grabbed the ball for his TD run.

Astronomer To Speak Tuesday

Dr. Joel Stebbins, eminent astronomer from Lick Observatory and resident of Menlo Park, will speak next Tuesday evening at Stanford Research Institute. Dr. Stebbins' lecture, entitled "Photoelectric Photometry of Stars" will be presented in the Village clubhouse at 8 p.m. and is open to the public.

The meeting is sponsored by RESA, the Scientific Research Society of America, a national honorary organization in the fields of research in the exact sciences. RESA is a companion organization to Sigma Xi, being the industrial counterpart to the latter academic honorary group.

Bears Upset Rams; Tie for 2nd Place

A revitalized Menlo-Atherton squad came out of a halftime lecture Friday afternoon to whip the Willow Glen Rams 39-12 and tie with them for second place in SPAL.

Not happy with the Bears' two-touchdown performance in the first half, Coach Howard Costello reportedly had a few "well-chosen words" for his team during the halftime.

The Menlo-Atherton team came out of that session to smash their way to four additional touchdowns in the second half.

Both squads have a three to one record and each has one game left in SPAL competition. Menlo-Atherton will play San Jose and Willow Glen will meet Palo Alto, preseason favorites for the league crown. It was the Vikings who handed the Bears their only league defeat of the season.

First Menlo - Atherton score came on a 44-yard run by halfback Ray Carter in the first quarter. Jerry Bogue's placement was short after a successful kick was nullified because of a penalty.

RAY CARTER
. . . makes first TD

The Rams tied it up in the same quarter when Dan Eggink snagged a five yard pass from Jim Pusateri. The attempted conversion was wide.

Quarterback Jim Finegold went over from the two yard line following an M-A 53-yard drive in the second quarter. Bogue's kick was good, giving the Bears a 13-6 edge at the half.

POWELL SCORES THREE

Fullback Don Powell dominated Menlo-Atherton scoring in the second half, racking up three of the Bears' four TDs. The big fullback ran 99 yards in 12 plays for an 8.3 average.

Powell outfought several opponents to snag a five-yard TD pass from Finegold in the third quarter. Later in the same period he smashed through tackle for a 44-yard touchdown run.

Third touchdown for Powell came when he went over from the four yard line in the fourth quarter. Menlo-Atherton got its fourth touchdown of the second half after Ray Carter returned an intercepted pass 21 yards to the Ram 17. Kennedy scored four plays later.

Final score of the game came when Joe Gagliardi pitched out to end Dick Hislip for a 53-yard gain and a TD.

LASSIE will headline the annual National Livestock Exposition at the Cow Palace from Nov. 2-11.

High School Travels North for Night Tilt

Menlo-Atherton High School's varsity football team, two weeks away from defeat at the hands of Capuchino, journeys north tomorrow evening to face the only team that's beaten the Mustangs to date—the Warriors of South San Francisco.

Coach Howard Costello doesn't promise anything for this one but he notes that the Bears pulled themselves together and got a good running game going last weekend when they rolled over Willow Glen, 39-12.

It may be that the usual mixed pass-and-run attack can produce some yardage against the Warriors also.

Only regular starter who won't be on the field when the whistle blows will be Ralph McIntyre, who's still feeling the effects of a shoulder separation.

Whether or not Menlo-Atherton wins this one, it won't make any difference to the South Peninsula Athletic League's statistics. Menlo-Atherton, with one league loss, is tied for second place in the circuit and the Palo Alto High School Vikings, with no defeats and 12 points scored against their reserves as the only ones against them all season, are pretty solidly in command of the first place spot.

In the north, the meeting doesn't count either. South San Francisco is tied for first place in its league but aside from preserving its one loss record, it can even up the statistics in the series between the two schools thus far.

In three games, Menlo - Atherton has won two and outpointed the Warriors, 31-20.

Tomorrow night's game starts at 8 p.m. at Clifford field, under the hill.

Coach Costello said he would start his usual squad.

Jim Sherman, left end; John Meese, left tackle; Roger Postlewaite, left guard; Bob Atkinson, center; Jerry Bogue, right guard; George Brown, right tackle; and Charles Dahl, right end.

D Casaba Team Meets Sequoia Today

Today at 3:15 p.m., Menlo-Atherton's class C and D basketball teams open their Big Ones against Sequoia, testing which of the two D teams will be SPAL champ, and which of the two C teams will have a chance to at least tie San Jose High School for a championship.

Both D teams are undefeated and are presently sharing first place honors in the circuit. Both C teams have lost to Lincoln but, Coach Bill Loftus hoped aloud, the Bulldogs of San Jose might knock over the Lions with the result that mathematically, the winner of today's C game would look lots better.

Sequoia's lightweights are closing the season, and Menlo-Atherton's have but on more week in contention before turning in their suits.

Last week's games with Palo Alto's Vikings showed that the Bruins can really shoot when they want to: the C's, paced by 14-pointer John Peck, beat out a 47-30 win and the D's, behind 17-pointer Dallas Hall, to a 44-19 victory.

During the course of the afternoon, however, the C's Cliff Davis found himself with a slight shoulder separation, Coach Loftus said, so he'll miss today's game.

During the current week, Loftus added, his lads have been working on floor patterns and shooting, so they should be real sharp by this afternoon.

Frosh-Soph Tilt To Decide SPAL Standings

Menlo - Atherton and Sequoia High School Frosh-Soph football teams clash on the Ringwood road gridiron today, with the championship of the SPAL at stake.

Coach Frank Bettencourt, who hopes his troops have improved since sharing a 0-0 tie with the Braves in a practice game before the start of the regular league season, was putting his Bruins through "secret" drills this week, in hopes of outsmarting the Indians.

And also, whatever new plays he can think up might help offset the loss of halfback Roosevelt Jones, who broke a wrist in last week's game against Willow Glen in which the locals preserved their unbeaten record for the season by coming out on top of a 19-13 duel.

Except for the loss of Jones, Bettencourt figures the two teams to be just as even as they were when they met earlier in the season. Both have been improving fast, he said, as frosh-soph teams do.

How the lower-grade teams can get themselves together was pretty well demonstrated last week in the Garden City, in a see-saw battle which turned out to be a brand new game at the beginning of the second half.

In the first quarter, Menlo-Atherton scored at the end of a 55-yard march as Lynn Vandervoort circled left end for four yards and the TD; Willow Glen came back after intercepting a pass.

PASSING

Menlo-Atherton got back into the game with passing, however, in the second canto, as quarterback Lynn Larson passed to Dave McDowell for 20 yards and a score. A passed conversion was also successful.

But then Willow Glen got back into the act and scored on a 10-yard pass play.

In the third stanza, Larson hit Ed Estberg for a 25 yard play which scored the final T Dof the day.

The lineup for today's game, Coach Bettencourt announced, would go something like this:

Patterson suffered a badly cut lip during the Willow Glen game but will be able to start this afternoon anyhow, the coach reported.

Columnist Applauds Short Nicknames For Athletic Teams in This Vicinity

WE PULLED A BOO-BOO . . .

We called the San Jose Jaycee football team the Cougars, not the Jaguars, which they are usually designated.

Actually, this could bring up considerable discussion on the naming of football teams.

Nobody knows, for instance, why Menlo-Atherton High School's athletic teams are called the Bears. It's a good name, though, and pleases scribes because it's a short word, and fits well in headlines.

★ ★ ★ ★

Whoever thought up the designation "Oaks" for Menlo College was truly inspired.

This one allows the designation, "Acorns," for the members of the school division to have some logic, and both words are short enough to fit well in headlines.

★ ★ ★ ★

NOT SO FORTUNATE are some of the other area teams.

Thus far, Menlo-Atherton High School's varsity football team has tangled with the Wildcats, the Lions, the Vikings, the Cherokees, the Rams, and the Mustangs; during the remainder of the grid season, they'll meet the Warriors, the Bulldogs and the Highlanders.

In nature, a bear would have a pretty good chance against of these opponents and be a fore-ordained loss against others.

This doesn't apply on the sports field, however, and as the years go by every loyal high school student and/or grad gets to think of his own particular school's nickname as about the best that there is.

★ ★ ★ ★

BE THAT AS IT MAY, the weight-lifters had their own world series, right in this area, the other day. They recently converged on San Jose's Civic Auditorium, to try out for positions on the United States Olympics weight-lifting team.

We don't know whether they look like ice cream cones or not because we didn't make it to the Garden City but we're assured that the best possible men were selected to make the journey to Melbourne.

And it could be that the weight-lifters will prove more important to America's prestige abroad than many another specialist in sports. Because weight-lifting might be more esteemed elsewhere than it is here.

THE FIRST WRESTLING SCOREBOOK EVER—for high school and college use—is now being published in Danville, Ill., for nationwide distribution.

And getting the fame for its authorship is Menlo-Atherton High School grunt-'n-groan Mentor Sam Lugonja, who thought the charts up all by himself, after a couple of years of watching opposing coaches come up with different scores for the same meet because they don't use the same tallying procedures.

It's the first score book of its type ever to be worked out, says its author.

Magazine Features MP Model Railroad

A photograph of a model railroad layout operated by Richard Meerly of Menlo Park appears in the current issue of Model Trains, a hobbyists' magazine for beginners in model railroading.

Meerly's layout, as shown in the magazine, is called the Redrock and Sierra and is in the shape of an "L" 23 feet long and three feet wide along one dimension, and 10-by-12 feet along the other dimension.

Meerly runs eight locomotives on the layout, the magazine says.

'Little Sheba':

Excellent Performances Mark Opening of Guild's Production

Thelma Schaefer takes the leading role in "Come Back, Little Sheba," and turns in an excellent performance for the Menlo Players Guild's production of William Inge's play which opened last weekend at Burgess Park Little Theater and which will be seen again tomorrow night and Saturday.

Playing the part of "Lola," the lazy, slovenly wife who once won a beauty queen contest and who is now unkempt and without purpose, Thelma turns in many an outstanding scene by projecting herself in the role. She is a woman whose life had faded into a series of inconsequential chapters and events without purpose or end.

Pete Mazonas ably interprets the role of "Lola's" husband "Doc" . . . the somehow noble but always pathetic ruin of a man who couldn't escape the realities of his home life and his failures in his ambitions via the route of the alcoholic.

He was excellent in his "drunk" scene in the dramatic climax to his homecoming after an alcoholic binge following a year of abstinence.

Others in the play are Ann Simmons who plays the young college girl; Bob Scott as the college athlete (played this weekend and next weekend by Tom Lagerquist); Florence Watila, the effective and kindly neighbor; Stan Cottrell as the postman; Al Ramirez as the milkman; George Spelvin, the messenger; Ken DeWitte, the young girl's fiance; Eldon Anderson and Bob Hoffman, as two friends from Alcoholics Anonymous.

Jerry LeGrande directed the play. The house interior, including the porch where "Lola" goes to call "Little Sheba," the living room and kitchen, were designed by R. Winston Sparrow.

First nighters at the play were few. Many hours of rehearsals and stagecraft are involved in polishing the production of this and other plays given by the Menlo Players Guild and certainly deserve support from the community.

"Come Back, Little Sheba" is good amateur little theater and well worth the time and money to see it.

It will be given again tomorrow night and Saturday night, with final performances slated for Friday and Saturday, November 16 and 17. Curtain time for all performances is 8:30 p.m. and tickets are available at the box office.

To Perform Here Chamber Singers

The Berkeley Chamber Singers will give a special concert at the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church Sunday at the parish hall, Laurel street and Ravenswood avenue. The presentation will be at 8:20 p.m., following a service of Evensong sung by the Trinity church choir at 8 p.m.

The chorus of 18 persons will sing a program of Renaissance motets by Isaac, Weelkes, Des-Pres, and the Bach motet, "Jesu, Meine Freude."

Donald Aird is conductor of the group.

How Straight Whiskey Is Made

Here are four popular straight whiskies. They're all made in the following general manner.

First the grain, (corn, rye, barley, etc.) after being cleaned, is ground into meal and cooked with malt added. The result, called mash, is cooled, pumped into fermenters and yeast is added.

This mixture is pumped into a still where heat vaporizes the alcohol. The vapors are drawn off and condensed. This is new whiskey (very high proof) which is stored in a cistern room. Distilled water is added to bring the whiskey down to proper strength and it is stored in new, charred oak barrels.

Straight whiskey, according to government definition, is a pure whiskey which has been aged not less than 24 calendar months. Usually distillers age their whiskies over two years. In any case, the exact age must appear on the label.

Because of this "barrel time" straight whiskey is naturally golden amber in color. No artificial coloring is needed. Also, due to the fact that straight whiskey is distilled at a comparative low proof, it tends to be heavy bodied and full flavored.

Vikings Cinch To Cop Top Spot

It looks like Palo Alto High School's Viking football team, with no defeats thus far this season, is pretty much a cinch to stay that way and cop top honors in the SPAL for the season.

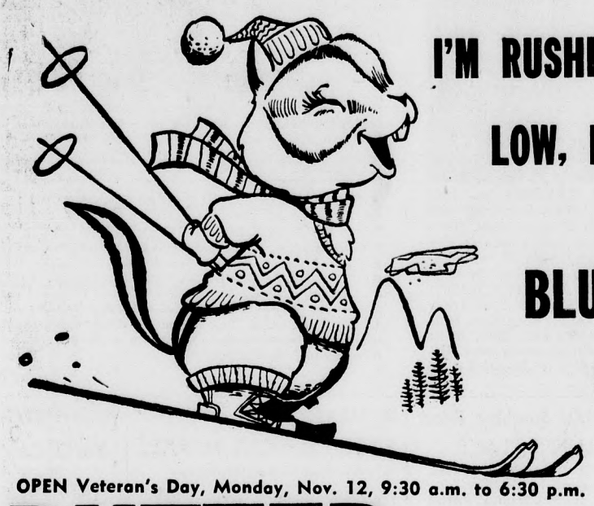

Only two touchdowns have been scored against Paly this season and both were made in a practice game with Hillsdale, with the San Mateans getting their scores against reserves in the waning portion of a one-sided contest that ended 54-12 in favor of the Vikes.

For their closing meetings, the Northmen have Lincoln, which was upset early in the season by M-A, Willow Glen, which the Bears also set back on its heels and Sequoia, which isn't the power it has to be, apparently, to engineer an upset.

Palo Alto rolled over the Bears 19-0 in the game between the two schools, and the Bears are now tied for second place.

M-A Selects Conley 'Player Of the Week'

Don Conley, frosh-soph reserve halfback, this week became Menlo-Atherton high school's "Athlete of the Week."

He got there when called into the Willow Glen game last week, replacing Roosevelt Jones when the latter regular broke his wrist.

Conley, with only a few minutes of competition previously in the season, averaged four yards per carry and engineered, among other things, a 35-yard punt runback to keep the Rams on their heels.

Not only that, says Coach Frank Bettencourt, he stayed in on defense during the fourth quarter, and looked well in that department also.

Conley is a freshman—one of those who managed to stay on the frosh-soph roster when the original large squad was cut to allow a freshman team to be formed.

M-A to Perform At Band Day

Menlo-Atherton's band will be one of 32 top high school musical units to participate in the second annual High School Band Day at Stanford Saturday during half-time at the Indian-Oregon State game.

Edward C. Brown is director of the Menlo-Atherton band.
